LIVES OF GREAT PIANISTS.

Beethoven, Louis Van.

"Let this summons," they write, "to so noble a work not be heard in vain. Delay no further to transport us back to those long-departed days when the power of Polyhymnia moved with mighty spells alike the hearts of the multitude and of the consecrated priests of art. Need we say with what deep regret your late retired mode of life has filled us? Is any assurance required that all eyes have been turned towards you, and that all have seen with sorrow that he, whom they acknowledge as the highest of living men in his own domain, should have looked on in silence while our German soil has been invaded by the footsteps of foreign art, the seat of the German muse usurped, and German works have become but the echo of those of strangers, threatening a second childhood of taste to succeed its golden age? etc. * * *

Beethoven declined reading the paper till he should be alone. "I arrived," says Schindler, "only just as he had finished its perusal. He communicated to me the contents, and after running them over once more, handed the paper quietly to me; then turning towards the window, he remained some time looking up at the sky. I could not help observing that he was much affected, and, after I had read it, I laid it down without speaking, in the hope that he would first begin the conversation. After a long pause, whilst our eyes never ceased following the clouds, he turned round, and said, in a tone which betrayed his emotion, 'It is really gratifying! I am much pleased.'" To Schindler's entreaties that he would accept the proposal he replied, "Let us get into the open air." After a great deal of discussion and management, not without innumerable provocations, intrigues on the part of selfish managers, etc., the concert was arranged. Still it was a glorious day for Beethoven and for art. The theatre was crowded. The master, standing with his back to the proscenium, was not even sensible of the tumultuous applause of the auditory at the close of the symphony, until Mme. Unger, by turning round and making signs, roused his attention, that he might at least see what was going on in the front of the house. This acted, however, like an electric shock on the thousands present, who were struck with a sudden consciousness of his misfortune; and as the floodgates of pleasure, compassion and sympathy were opened there followed a volcanic explosion of applause, which seemed as if it would never end.

Beethoven died on the 26th of March, 1827, aged fifty-six, during a tremendous hail storm, after a most painful sickness, brought on by a cold taken while traveling, and aggravated by carelessness on his own part and neglect on the part of those who should have been nearest to him. Several beautiful anecdotes are told of his last sickness. Thus, only a few days before his death, he received from an admirer in England a magnificent present of all Handel's works, whom he had always revered as the greatest of composers. The volumes were laid upon his head; and he exclaimed, pointing to them, "That is the true thing" (Das ist das Wahre) and he spent his brightest hours for the last few days in poring over the notes of those sublime religious strains.

Beethoven was a Catholic by birth. His was a deeply religious spirit; although religion was with him rather a matter of sentimental and experimental feeling, than of any technical creed and system. It is said he had written with his own hand two inscriptions, said to be taken from the temple of Isis, which were framed, and lay constantly upon his writing table. They were as follows:

1. "I am that which is—I am all that is, all that was, and all that shall be—no mortal man hath my veil uplifted!"
2. "He is One, self-existent, and to that One all things owe their existence."

Two things he would never talk about—religion and thorough bass. For he regarded them both as things ultimate and settled; the one the foundation of life, the other of music. He regarded a good life as the only confession of faith; and the production of true works of musical art as the only solution of the laws of harmony. His life and his music alike were a yearning and striving towards the spiritual essence, which he felt to be supreme, and the ground of all things. His music was his religion; into that he poured his life. In his music he aspired to the Infinite. In his music he accomplished the great sacrifice of self, and displayed the heroic will by his resolute adherence to the theme, mastering and controlling his thronging inspirations. In his music was he always true, as in his life, compromising nothing for effect, for immediate success or comfort, but spending himself to give worthy utterance to holy and deep sentiments. In his music are the tenderest love, and energetic will, and loftiest aspiration, and purity and faith; as he himself said, "The secret of all true art lies, after all, in the moral." To such truth-loving self-renunciation as his, how much was revealed! How much he has bequeathed to the ages in that language which admits of no misconstructions, like words; which sets forth no partial truths, like all thoughts and systems which are only started to be contradicted; that language which comes from the heart of the man, and expresses the sentiment which reconciles all conflicting views, and speaks to the heart again! When will the world appreciate his music?

We add the following from Fetis' Biographie Universelle:

"Never was the interest which so great a man excited manifested so forcibly as during his last sickness; anxiety was depicted on every face; a great crowd obstructed the avenues to his house, and the most distinguished personages called at his door to learn the news. The report of the danger which threatened him was rapidly circulated, and soon reached Weimar, where Hummel was, who departed instantly for Vienna, with the intention of becoming reconciled to Beethoven, who had been angry with him some years previous. On entering the chamber, Hummel melted into tears; Beethoven stretched out his hand to him, and these two celebrated men separated only as true friends. After the fatal moment, a general consternation spread through the city. More than thirty thousand persons followed in the funeral procession, and among the eight masters of the chapel who officiated as pall bearers might be seen Eybler, Weigl, Hummel, Gyrowetz and Seyried. Thirty-six artists, among whom were the poets Grillparzer and Castelli, carried the torches. The requiem of Mozart, as also a hymn by M. Seyried, were performed for the obsequies, in the church of the Augustines; and the remains of the great man were deposited in the cemetery of Wharing, near Vienna, where a monument was shortly afterwards erected over his grave.

"We know of but two pupils who were educated by Beethoven. One is Archduke Rodolph, who possesses remarkable talent as a pianist, and who has practised with some success as a composer; the other is Ferdinand Ries. Beethoven was little suited to direct a musical education, as he was too much preoccupied and too impatient, and could not follow the progress of a pupil in methodical order.

FIFTIETH YEAR Perry's Musical Magazine

BEST MUSICAL MONTHLY PUBLISHED
SAMPLE COPY, 15 CENTS; $1.50 PER ANNUM.

READ WHAT WE CLAIM FOR IT

A year's subscription is a volume of Vocal and Instrumental Compositions for the Piano and Cabinet Organ of the choicest variety. At least sixty-five subjects, listing at Forty Dollars, valuable copyright music appear, that cannot be found in any other magazine.

"THE LIVES OF GREAT MUSICIANS" will be instructive, entertaining and inspiring.

Each number always contains our latest pieces, and we are very careful to select such music that pleases the average musical ear, and some of the easiest and medium grades, so that the beginner in music can derive as much pleasure and benefit as the more advanced player.

Our Mr. Phil B. Perry selects the music for teaching purposes. Being a pupil of Leschetizky, a graduate of Kullak's Conservatory, Berlin, Germany, and a successful teacher, he knows the requirements of teachers far better than the publishers of other magazines who have not enjoyed his unusual advantages.

Our "Premium List," which embraces most liberal inducements for those who wish to act as agents, will be mailed free to any address upon application.

THE LATEST AND BEST OF ALL METHODS FOR THE PIANOFORTE!

Butler's Correct Method for the Piano

Contains Over 250 Pages, Full Sheet Music Size
Volume 1 for Beginners Volume 2 Medium
Volume 3 for More Advanced Players. Volume 4, Difficult
Volume 5, a Grade More Difficult
PRICE OF EACH VOLUME, $1.00

The well-known composer and teacher, M. W. Butler, has adopted in his method the best lessons of the old Masters, such as Czerny, Haydn, Beethoven, Leschetizky, etc., together with his own modern ideas as to the proper method of teaching, making this instructor for the pianoforte what we claim—an absolutely correct one.

We want every teacher of the piano to examine the work thoroughly and will be pleased to send a complete copy of either Volume 1, 2, 3, 4 or 5 to any address, postpaid, upon receipt of $1.00. We hope to receive your order for at least one of the volumes, for we are satisfied you will in future adopt it in your classes in preference to all other methods or studies.

Address the publishers.

EXTRA—A beautiful Diploma, suitable for framing, is given with each volume

The celebrated composer, J. OWEN LONG, writes:

"I am very fond of the BUTLER METHOD. My pupils are doing remarkably well, a-way a-head of those using other Methods. It sure is a pleasing comprehensive course for teachers and students."

M. W. BUTLER'S BRILLIANT VARIATIONS FOR THE PIANO, ON THE MOST BEAUTIFUL HOME SONGS

These charming compositions, published in sheet music form, would cost FOUR times the price of the book. CONTENTS: "My Old Kentucky Home, Goodnight." "The Star-Spangled Banner." "Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still." "Alice." "Old Folks at Home." "Maryland! My Maryland!" "Dixie's Land." "Lovely Night. The Tales of Hoffman." PRICE COMPLETE IN ONE VOLUME, 75 CENTS

Leschetizky's Scale and Chord Exercises Leschetizky's Arpeggio Exercises.

PRICE, 50 CENTS EACH

The art of playing scales runs, etc., is known to comparatively few. The editor of Leschetizky's Scale Exercises, M. W. Butler, has studied under some of the best American teachers, but none of them called his attention to the fact that he was not using his thumb properly in the execution of scales and runs. In 1883 he departed for Germany for a five years' course of musical study in Berlin and Vienna.

In Berlin he studied piano-forte playing with Kullak, Klindworth and Reif. All seemed satisfied with his touch. It was not until he arrived in Vienna when Leschetizky pointed out to him that in order to execute with the right hand a rapid ascending scale or run evenly with the greatest velocity it is absolutely necessary that the thumb should pass quickly under the fingers (towards the next key it is to play instantly) as soon as the second finger has struck its key. It retards velocity and creates an uneven touch to wait until the third or fourth fingers have played before passing the thumb under. Leschetizky personally taught the editor his exercises for preparing the hand to execute scales, runs, etc., evenly and with the greatest velocity, all of which are published complete, and with full explanations as to how they should be practiced in Leschetizky's Scale and Arpeggio Exercises.

These books also contain instructive remarks by Paderewski and his teacher, Leschetizky, lessons explaining how all pianoforte music should be practiced.

Perry's Lesson Record and Memorandum FOR MUSIC TEACHERS

This book was revised with much care and thought, and is expressly for music teachers. It enables the teacher to keep an accurate account of all lessons given, music sold and names of pupils. Price, 15 cents, post-paid.

Perry's Piano or Organ Voluntaries, For Use in Church Services.

Most arrangements of this very necessary music for the church are selections from organ voluntaries, simplified to meet the exigencies of an instrument more circumscribed in its variety of tone. The result is far from being favorable to bring out the best effect from reed tones. These voluntaries have been especially written for the cabinet organ, with only one end in view—the production of the best effects possible from the instrument. Each voluntary is just difficult enough to give incentive to a moderate study of it. Cadences occur at frequent intervals so that fragments of them can be properly used as interludes when desirable. Liberal use of the works of the great masters have been made in the collection. Price, 75 cents.

MUSICAL NOVELTIES

DASHING THROUGH THE SNOW. Composed by M. W. Butler. This is one of the liveliest pieces published, and represents a party of young people out sleighriding. It is played with sleigh bells which are attached to the hands of the pianist. There is a vocal part which produces a grand effect! Although this composition may be performed with or without the singing or bells, we guarantee you will be pleased with it.

Imported Swiss Musical Bells

FALLING SNOW, an Idyll, composed by Perry. Descending snow flakes, the jingle of sleighbells at hand and their vanishing in the distance, inspire the motive. The author has woven in beautiful melodies throughout this creation and to emphasize he has introduced (Imported Swiss) finger bells with charmist effect.

JINGLE BELLS GALOP, composed by M. W. Butler. A lively galop, full of beautiful melodies. Grade 2, without Octaves.

We will fill your orders for above novelties and send by mail, postpaid, at the following prices: Music for each piece, only 15 cents Bells for each piece, only 25 cents. Should you desire a copy each of the music and one set of the bells, will furnish them complete for only 65 cents.
